The Dolch list is a list of frequently used words, developed by Edward William Dolch, PhD. He published it in his book called "Problems in Reading", in 1948.

The list contains 220 most commonly occurring words in the English language. These words make up 50 to 70 percent of any general, non-technical text. Dolch excluded nouns from his main list, but did compile a separate word list of 95 most common nouns.

Dolch words are also known as sight words. Dolch found that children who can identify a certain core group of words at a glance could learn to read and comprehend better.
