"If you are looking for a sci-fi adventure with cutting edge battles, sophisticated heroes and villains, lost ancient powers, and an impossible love interest that can only end in disaster, look no further."

The Sealers have activated Nexus Tear. Lucienne Lam, born to rule as the last of the Sirens, must destroy the ancient weapon before it terminates her. But Prince Vladimir, her first love and once strongest ally, has joined forces with her enemies over the one kiss she shared with Ashburn Fury--the kiss that is denied to him by the Siren curse.

Laments of Angels & Dark Chemistry series - Will it be Us or Them?

Though packed with adventure, explosions, and romance, this series isn't about action or entangled love interests. At the heart of The Laments of Angels & Dark Chemistry series is the very survival of humankind.

I left clues on the mysteries of human origin, evolution, and ancient civilizations and wars throughout the first four books, but you'll only get the answers in the fifth installment.

Long ago, Earth was filled with wars between more advanced species and wars we fought among ourselves and against them. Our ancestors called the superior race "the fallen angels," who insisted they were the first Earth natives.

As humankind increased in numbers and became a new kind of predator, our conflict with the angels could no longer be settled. Human spirits could not accept the role of "inferior race." Our ancestors chose to die free than live on their knees, and so they devised a weapon and drove the angels into the space. The cost was deadly--numerous brave men and women perished, and by turning back time, destroyed all technology and every advanced civilization.

Now millions of years have passed.

Humans stand hesitantly at the threshold of a quantum evolution, but the race we exiled has found a way to wage a new war against us. They've upgraded their magical powers and technology beyond our perception. They're coming to take back Earth.

Unfortunately, the weapon our ancestors deployed has been lost to us. We don't know anything about ancient warfare or our secret history. We don't have the slightest idea that we're facing extinction.

Our only hope rests with Lucienne Lam, the last and most powerful of the Sirens, who leads her Sphinxes nation in the fight against the returning angels. She will stand with the last of us to save our planet.

In the end, only one race can have Earth. Will it be us or them?
