While other books emphasize the importance of maintaining oral hygiene, it is ultimately not enough to whiten your teeth as it does nothing to address the SOURCE of the discoloration. Tooth discoloration is the result of eating, drinking or inhaling (in the case of smokers) particles that get seep through the fine cracks in the enamel (surface) of the tooth and give it a yellow tinge.

The important thing to understand is that brushing ones teeth will only scrape of debris from the surface layer of the tooth and do nothing to solve the discoloration in the layer underneath it. Yet with simple steps thousands of people including myself, have been able to improve the clarity of their set of teeth, giving them an attractive and confident smile.
